About Us

For more than 75 years, Oregonians have depended on the Oregon State University Extension Service for information they can use to help themselves. Extension offers objective, research-based educational programs in agriculture, home economics, 4-H youth, forestry, marine resources, energy, and community development.

County Extension agents work with on-campus Extension specialists and researchers to design educational programs for local needs. Your county Extension office has educational materials such as publications, videotapes on a variety of topics. Also, agents organize workshops and other special programs in your county.

But Extension's most valuable teaching tool is people. Trained volunteers expand the efforts of county agents and campus specialists to answer questions, work with young people, and provide a greater variety of educational programs. Volunteers benefit, too, not only from increased knowledge, but in personal growth and in developing leadership skills.

Extension offers many ways in which you can be involved. Call or visit your county Extension office today.

Oregon State University Extension Service offers educational programs, activities, and materials – without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, national origin, age, marital status, disability and disabled veteran or Vietnam-era veteran status – as required by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. Oregon State University Extension Service is an Equal Opportunity Employer.
