

The Backyard Barnyard

More people are looking for ways to be self-sufficient and to create a more sustainable environment at home. In addition to growing fruits and vegetables there is increasing interest in raising poultry. Poultry provide eggs, meat and valuable fertilizer for the garden! Learn to raise poultry successfully in your backyard wherever you are. Learn which breed is right for you, the basics of care, diseases and other problems, and what you need to know to make your backyard barnyard a success. This class will be taught by OSU Extension Poultry Specialist James Hermes.
