Join Molly Morison from The Nature Conservancy on an easy tour of vernal pool habitats in the protected Whetstone Savannah Preserve north of Medford. This preserve is a spring wildflower haven and home to two federally listed endangered plants, as well as threatened vernal pool fairy shrimp. There will be much to see and discuss including vernal pool restoration and the TNC’s experiences using fire as a management tool.

Space is limited for this tour. We will meet at 8:30 AM at OSU Extension, 569 Hanley Road to carpool. Participants should bring water and a snack and are welcome to stay on-site to enjoy their lunches after the tour.

Molly Morison, as the Nature Conservancy’s SW Oregon Preserves Manager, oversees stewardship of nine diverse preserves, manages a robust volunteer program, develops conservation plans, and maintains partnerships.

Date: Wednesday, April 17, 2019
Time: 9:00 AM—12:00 PM
Location: Whetstone Savannah Preserve
Meet at 8:30 AM at OSU Extension, 569 Hanley Road, Central Point to carpool

Space is limited and preregistration is required!
Sign up online at http://bit.ly/LandStewardClasses or call the OSU Extension at (541) 776-7371

Charge: $15 per person, $25 couples. $5 discount for OSU volunteers.

For more information, email Rachel.Werling@oregonstate.edu

OSU Extension Service prohibits discrimination in all its programs, services, activities, and materials.